BRAZIL SAMBAS Back in the Race!

The 3rd Round was a night for Brazilian football. Raised from the near dead, the squad found inspired play from missing Captain, Cane, who led the team to 10 points, their first goal and their first win -- all in one night. Uruguay continued it's domination - still unbeaten -- while the USA had it's first blemish on a previously unbeaten mark, but stayed on the heels of Uruguay. Italy continued to play the part of potential spoiler, while Mexico dealt with being undermanned a 2nd consecutive night.

UNIFORMS QUESTIONED: SPAIN

While Spanish football in 21st centuries 2nd decade has been amongst the most esteemed, it was odd and awkward Wednes night when the team rolled out without their uniforms. "We don't need them," Coach Brent reports.

Dangerous Confidence

When Uruguay almost refused a team photo claiming they'd wait till the trophy pose, it became clear and evident that this team is full of belief. However, some critics are skeptical of the unbeaten Uruguayan "air" and wonder if the brash and bold swagger might backfire. When Uruguayan midfielder Mikah was asked about being over confident, she auspiciously replied, "Over.. what?" It seems to permeate their play and if the team hoists the trophy then it will be that swagger that is given credit. But if they falter in elimination play, then "dangerous confidence" may stick.

CONFIDENT? If confidence was measured in degrees Celsius Uruguay's confidence thermometer moved ahead of the temperature gage Wednesday. Brash? Daring? Dangerous?

INJURY UPDATE Mexican Bulldog forward Casey is carted off in the 2nd rd, but thankfully had negative results. Luke had his dislocated wrist set on Tues is doing fine! Great news!

ITALIAN SPOILER A footballing nation prone toward investigation, The Azurri may be prone toward an upset of still undefeated Uruguay. Tonight's finals could be interesting!
